MEMORIAL DAY CEREMONIES IN HONOR OF THE DEAD TO BE MOST IMPRESSIVE

Marshal Livermore Has Charge of Arrangements—Excursion Train Runs To Cemetery

HACKETT IS ORATOR

Memorial Service at Methodist Church Sunday Morning by Dept. Chaplain Westcott

The service in the Methodist church on Sunday, May 28, at 10:30, will be attended by the G. A. R., W. R. C., A. & N. U., Ladies' Auxiliary, and Daughters of Veterans, when the Memorial Day service will be preached by Rev. J. B. Westcott, Department Chaplain. They will meet at the G. A. R. Hall at a. m. and all march to the church.

For Tuesday morning, May 30th—Memorial Day—arrangements have been made with Station Agent Knight for a round-trip ticket at a trifling expense of ten cents. All going are requested to meet at the depot at 7 o'clock.

The children who are to decorate the graves will be the guests of the G. A. R. Post. The committee on decorating wish the children to bring what flowers they can procure to the G. A. R. Hall on Monday afternoon, between 4 and 6 o'clock. This will give an opportunity for learning how many tickets will have to be provided for the children who decorate.

It is hoped that as many as possible will avail themselves of the trip to the cemetery.

On the return from the cemetery the line will reform at the depot and proceed to the lake, where the imposing service in honor of our dead soldier-sailors will be held under the auspices of the Army and Navy Union and auxiliaries.

At 2 o'clock sharp and appropriate program will be rendered at the G. A. R. Hall, when the Rev. W. L. Hackett, of the Presbyterian church, will deliver the address. A cordial invitation is extended to all citizens and civic and fraternal societies are especially requested to join us in the proper observance of this the Nation's Sabbath day.

E. E. Livermore will be marshal, and all organizations are to be under his direction.

Wm. Hall, Chairman Com.

MEMORIAL DAY

(By D. Homer Jennings)

Revere this day, Memorial Day—Your day, my day—by valor won. Six hundred thousand of our brave Sleep with the blest—their duty done. The marshalled tread of those today. With muffled drums and life's sad strain.

Are comrades true that wore the blue. They bring flowers for heroes slain.

We love the name, Memorial Day, And bid you all bring flowers rare. You, too, may find some little mound Where sleeps some loved one's treasure there.

I deck the monument of one today Whose child-like face is ever near, And as I kneel in silent prayer, The answer comes, "My mother dear."

Sacred the name, Memorial Day—Bind it with ties of purest love; And as we drop forget-me-nots There comes this message from above: "Deck them with garlands fresh to-day, Never forget the brave and true, Once more beneath Old Glory's fold, Cover them over—the Gray and Blue."

Spuds That Will Make You Look Twice Before Believing Brought To This Office by Comrade Barber

Comrade George Barber, Co. C, 32nd Ohio Infantry, arrived here some fourteen months ago, and his friends in the North gave him leave of absence for six months, feeling assured that by that time he would have tired of St. Cloud and would be ready to return to his old home and friends. Since arriving here he has lost a good deal of superfluous flesh and at the same time headaches and other ailments which he had in the North have all disappeared. Comrade Barber is seventy-two years of age but is as spry as a spring lamb and looks twenty years younger than he really is. He is feeling, as he expresses it, "the best ever."

Entertainment at Mrs. Goff's

Mr. and Mrs. Goff had an afternoon's entertainment at their residence on Indiana avenue on Wednesday last. Most of their neighbors were present, including Mr. and Mrs. Riley, Mr. and Mrs. Lenox, Mrs. Jerome, Capt. and Mrs. Prentiss and two daughters, and Miss Bleech. A most pleasant time was enjoyed and after a lunch of ice cream and cake all departed, declaring that they had had a most jovial time.

Comrade Barber brought us in a sample of potatoes that he planted as an experiment on New Year's Day. The seed used were ordinary small Georgia white potatoes, bought out of the store and from which he selected the very small ones, and the product brought to our office this week were exceptionally fine, notwithstanding the exceeding dry weather. They were of such size and quality as to make one look twice before believing.

We consider that our friends, Illman, McCarthy and Barber are in a class by themselves when it comes to the cultivation of spuds.

Comrade Barber leaves for a visit in the North in a few days and will undoubtedly bring back some friends with him.

TIMOTHY AND CLOVER SUCCESSFULLY GROWN HERE, SAYS HORN

Our friend, T. A. Horn, is always on the look-out for fodder. He brought into our office the other day some samples of Timothy and clover. The latter is eighteen inches high and well rooted. Mr. Horn tells us this was grown on land that was well plowed and harrowed, then rolled so as to form a solid top, and he claims that either timothy or alsike thus treated could be grown successfully here.

A Wise Hint to Our City Health Officer

The Tribune desires to supplement its remarks in last week's issue with the following, taken from the Miami Metropolis:

The Board of Health is in the market for flies at the current market price of twenty-five cents per pint, this price having been offered by the board yesterday to all boys and girls of Miami who will aid the board in its campaign to make Miami a fly-less town.

Twenty-five cents per pint will be paid by the Board in addition to the prizes of $10, $7.50 and $5, for the winners of first, second and third prizes, as agreed on last week.

To the girl or boy bringing to Dr. Edgar Peters, health officer, the greatest amount of flies within a specified time the board will pay $10, and the other prizes will go to those bringing in the second and third largest amounts.

Canvassing Election Returns a Big Job

A big job will be the canvassing of the returns in the election on the 6th of June, in fact it will be one of the biggest and hardest jobs ever tackled in this county for some time. For instance, in St. Cloud there will be about 600 votes cast for about 140 candidates, with first and second choice votes for each, which will take from 36 to 48 hours, or longer, to canvass the ballots and tabulate the returns.

The DeLand News, in commenting on just this thing expresses our sentiments when it says:

It is too much to expect one set of inspectors to do this work. It would be killing. The only way by which this work can be done intelligently will be for two of the inspectors to work eight hours, then two more take hold of the work, with assistants called in for the purpose while the first two take a rest and get some sleep.

The larger precincts should be divided up into three parts. It is too much to ask men to canvass the returns in precincts of 300 or more voters, under our present primary law.

OBJECTS AND PRINCIPLES OF THE LOYAL ORDER OF MOOSE UNFOLDED

The Loyal Order of Moose, recognizing the universality of human brotherhood, its organization is designed to embrace the world within its jurisdiction—intended solely and only to disseminate the great principles of Purity, Aid and Progress; nothing of a sectarian or political character is permitted within its portals. Tolerance in religion, obedience to law, and loyalty to government are its cardinal principles.

Some "Punkin" in Morris' Back Yard

Mr. C. H. Morris, on New York avenue and Fourth street, has a "punkin" growing on his vine that measures 4 feet and 6 inches in circumference, and it is still growing at the rate of one inch a day. Mr. Morris knows this, as he has been measuring his "punkin" nearly every day in order to find out just how much "she" was growing per day.

Mr. Morris also has a fine crop of potatoes and beets and other garden "sass" usual to this vicinity.

Mr. Morris came to St. Cloud in August last and erected an elegant bungalow near the lake front, and now owns one of the prettiest homes in town.

Mrs. Sophia Meyer Erects New House

Mrs. Sophia Meyer has purchased two lots on Block 190, Kentucky avenue, and will erect a concrete bungalow the coming summer. We understand that the contract for this building has already been let.

Why You Should Become a Member

It is an ideal lodge. Its membership comprises men in all walks of life and all vocations—public officials, clergymen, lawyers, professional men, business men, artisans, merchants, and mechanics. It knows no class or distinction because of wealth or other consideration. In this lodge all men are equal—one for all and all for one.

It is the lodge "different." It follows no ruts. It accepts the good found in other organizations, but ever seeks new and progressive ways of being useful.

Its strength and influence enable it to do big things in a big way and to carry out every obligation.

It welcomes to its membership all men of the Caucasian race of lawful occupation and good moral character, between the ages of 21 and 55 years. Men over 55 years of age are accepted as non-beneficiary members.

It is yet time to get on the list before it closes. We would like to see the organization start with 100 members. It has passed the 50 mark, which number is required to get a charter.

The initiation fee is only five dollars to charter members, and the dues are ten dollars per year, payable quarterly in advance. The dues for non-beneficiary members are three dollars per year.

The Helping Hand

The subordinate lodges of the Loyal Order of Moose paid nearly three million dollars to sick, needy and distressed members during the past year.

A Friend In Need

The Loyal Order of Moose pays a weekly sick benefit, a death benefit and furnishes free medical attention to members and their families.

SEMI-TROPICAL PLANTATION OF VREELAND WELL WORTH A VISIT

Have you ever seen a night-blooming cactus? Have you found such a plant in the garden of Mrs. J. O. Vreeland, and it certainly is a beauty. It is about five inches in diameter and is shaped like a large daisy, with white petals and canary-colored Buttermilk Famine?

If those ladies who were caught lugging off a two-gallon jar of buttermilk from the milk wagon the other day, on Eleventh street, don't let up on these depredations there will be a visible shortage in the buttermilk supply shortly.

COURTNEY HELMS ROPES GATOR AND IS GLAD TO RELEASE HIM

O. C. Knight, knight of the key, and who presides over the destinies of our railroad station; Clarence Bailey, he of the trombone variety, and possessor of the local jitney-perambulator; H. C. Hartley, who sells tanks and roach traps; Fred Phipps, erstwhile conductor on our mail cart; Courtney Helms, concocter of mysteries in P. D. Marine's mixery; and George Marsh, present incumbent of the post just vacated by Fred Phipps—novices all—made a sortie on last Saturday night into the regions of Lake Joe, some ten miles east of St. Cloud, and encamped themselves on its shores until the following noon. During the midnight and early morning hours they indulged in fishing, fighting skeeters and frying fish.

The fish seemed to be voraciously hungry, as they caught about two hundred pounds, all being of a good size. This was young Helms' first outing in the Florida woods, and, as usual, the unexpected always happens to the uninitiated. It came as follows:

Courtney perceived a connection in the water near the shore, and upon approaching with a light he perceived that it was a gator who was seriously engaged in devouring a nice string of fish which he had staked out. As Courtney was leaving for the North on the following day it occurred to him that it would be quite a novelty to catch this gator and take him up North as a trophy, so, on the impulse of the moment he made his way back to shore, procured about forty feet of large-size fishing line, and, with the stealth that would have put a Comanche brave to shame, stole back to the windward of Mr. Gator and dropped a nicely prepared noose over his cavernous maw and jerked it taught. No sooner done, then—Holy Mother of Moses! It seemed like the entire lake was emptying itself out on this one spot, and Courtney, there on the spot, bid the "bubbling waters" adios and two-stepped for shore. Strange to relate, he still had hold of the cord, but he was at the extreme end of it. The gator, feeling the pull, endeavored to follow to keep from being choked to death, but Courtney hied on, so to speak, leading the gator, and the poor beast throwing himself on "high" trying to keep up with Helms, and, by the beard of Mohammed, what a beautiful race it was. Palmettos and logs of indescribable magnitude were negotiated and brier brambles trampled down in a "cam roller" manner. But all things come to an end, and so did this little spin. In making a certain short cut around a huge pine tree the gator and the boy met face to face. This was the straw that broke the camel's back, and so Courtney let go of his end of the rope, leaving the gator there entangled worse than ever. After three or four lanterns were brought up and a bonfire built the party viewed the beast, and where there was laughter before there was now a row of sober faced embryo gator hunters, for the beast was a fairly good one, measuring more than six feet and Courtney decided he didn't want any gators to take back north.

We notice that the Christian Science church has received a new coat of paint, which adds much to its appearance.

Miami Buys Flies

A plan outlined by Councilman L. T. Highleyman, of the Board of Health of the city of Miami, recently resulted in the passage of a motion offering a prize of $10 to the boy or girl under 18 years of age who would bring the most dead flies to the city health officer's office between then July 1st the second prize to be $7.50 and the third $5.

The whole scheme is to rid the city of flies. It is believed that by encouraging the boys and girls to swat them whenever they have a chance a large amount of these pests can be destroyed. In order to measure the flies without handling them they are to be placed in pint or quart bottles and to be sealed, and each bottle is to bear the name of the contestant.

Lincoln Nominated Fifty-Six Years Ago

At noon Thursday, May 18, 1860, 56 years ago, Abraham Lincoln was nominated by the Republican party for president. The nomination was made by the convention which met in the Wigwam in Chicago, which building stood near the site of the present auditorium hotel in Michigan avenue. Lincoln was apprised of his nomination at Springfield, Ill. That city was the scene of a great demonstration in the evening.

Last week Fort Myers shipped its sixth car of watermelons to the North. About 1,000 melons composed the last shipment, and the melons averaged twenty-five pound each, and netted very fancy prices, averaging over $500 net per car to the owners.

THE ELECTIONS

By J. Y. PORTER, State Health Officer

Election time has come again. Politics and political chances will divide public attention for the next five months or more, with the Mexican situation and the war in Europe.

Presidential candidates are yet to be named, but aspirants for local honors are before the dear people, with all their claims and promises and records. The choice from these lists is to be made within the next few weeks, and these choices are more important to the individual voter, for when you really come to think it over, who is his tax assessor and sheriff, his representative in the legislature and who are the men that shall make and enforce municipal and state laws, is more important than who is president of the United States. The enforcement of local and state laws are more directly connected with the individual welfare. Federal government is more a matter of policies and less affected by the personality of the administrators.

And this is particularly true of the laws that regulate sanitary and health matters, for the individual and community health is the biggest asset of the individual and community. Sickness stops the producing capacity of the individual, makes him a charge upon his reserve fund or his friends. Epidemic disrupts public business and finances.

Therefore, it is of prime importance to every resident of Florida, whether he be property owner, tax payer or voter, who are the men that make the laws to protect his health, and it is quite as important who are the officials that enforce the laws already upon the statute books.

Not every man who has paid his poll tax is a qualified voter, at least morally. It is impossible that every voter should know intimately the personal qualifications for office of all who seek election to national or state places, but it is within his power to know the men who seek municipal or county offices, and upon these depends in largest measure the character of legislation that is to protect or fail to protect, physical welfare.

Just as in the years that are passed the choice of men for public places depends in large measure upon personal friendship without regard for the fitness for the duties that the office involves. Personal popularity has been a strong plank in the platform, even though it be an unwritten platform.

The statute books of Florida contain a considerable number of laws designed to conserve public health in the state, but they have been practically dead letters, because the officials chosen to enforce laws impartially have failed utterly and ignominiously of these duties in respect to these particular enactments. Experts in sanitation and health matters know that a strict enforcement of these same laws would materially benefit public health and lessen the aggregate of sickness. Some of these negligent officials are candidates for re-election. What are you going to do about it?

Only two members of a certain recent city council in Jacksonville ever visited the offices of the city board of health during their terms of office, and those two went to demand jobs for constituents. When the budget committee of that same city council fixed up the annual appropriations for the support of the health department, it made a substantial cut in the amount which the previous year had kept that department on the verge of inefficiency because of a lack of proper and sufficient funds.

That is not the kind of men who are fitted for public service, especially and least of all in matters relating to public health.

The time is now, before the ballots are cast, to make sure of the attitude of candidates for county commissioners, for sheriffs, for state attorneys in matters relating to health and sanitation. Of course, their pre-election promises will favor your expressed views and it is up to you, Mr. Voter, to judge of the value of those promises.

It was an emergency, an epidemic of yellow fever that took its toll of several hundreds of valuable lives, which led to the organization of the State Board of Health. But why wait for the emergency? Why not be prepared and so forestall the emergency that may be avoided by preparedness?

Interesting and Instructive Meeting of the St. Cloud Veterans' Association

Owing to frequent showers a somewhat limited number of people assembled in the G. A. R. Hall for the usual Saturday afternoon meeting of the Veterans' Association. President Kenney called the meeting to order at 2 p. m., and the choir sang with the audience our National anthem, America. In the absence of the chaplain the audience joined President Kenney in repeating the Lord's Prayer.

The choir and audience sang the Battle Hymn of the Republic. Minutes of previous meeting were read, corrected and approved.

Collection amounted to 91 cents. Comrade Burch, who left on the 16th inst., made a farewell greeting to the association, in which he spoke feelingly of the pleasure and satisfaction he has always enjoyed in the association meetings and the agreeable relations he has always sustained to the good people of St. Cloud, and though absent in the flesh he would, on each recurring Saturday afternoon during his absence, think of the dear comrades and friends assembled here to enjoy the pleasant and interesting entertainments for which the Veterans' Association is noted.

Dr. Farris, on behalf of the association remarked that of the many who are missed from these meetings comrade Burch's absence would perhaps be more noticeable by reason of his always being present to entertain the people, and moved that a vote of thanks be given to him, which was carried unanimously by a rising vote of the association.

Mrs. Dodge, in charge of the social hour, presented the following program:

Song, When the Roll is Called Up Yonder, choir and audience.

Reading, A Bachelor's Birthday Present Rev. Kenney.

Song, Throw Out the Life Line, choir and audience.

Reading, The Darkey's Dream, Comrade Lynch.

Music, two violins and piano, Comrades Burch and Jones, and Miss Edith Harrod in the following selections: The Topliners, A Charge to Victory, and Whispering Wavies Waltz.

Monologue, Just Gab, Comrade Still.

For an encore he rendered Uncle Rufus' Hennerly.

Piano solo, Jesus, Lover or My Soul, with variations, Mrs. Dr. Buckmaster. For an encore she played Belles of the Blue Grass.

Reading, At the Telephone, Miss Edith Harrod.

Song, Old Black Joe, choir and audience.

Reading, St. Cloud News Items, Stories and Reminiscences, President Kenney.

Song, The Army Beau, Comrades Lynch, Goff and Burch. This seemed to please the audience so well that its repetition was called for, and so it was repeated, which closed the program.

At the conclusion of the exercises Mrs. Dodge spoke briefly of her pleasant connection with the choir and the dear people of the Veterans' Association, and thanked them very much for their co-operation and assistance in contributing to the success of these meetings.

This attempt to fill the place of the Association's regular scribe will be the last for six months, more or less, as plans for the future to most of us are extremely uncertain. During our absence we shall eagerly welcome the weekly visits of the St. Cloud Tribune with its messages and interesting news items and news from the Wonder City, and the dear comrades and friends of our "own and only" Veterans' Association.

J. N. Burch, Sec. Pro Tem.

A Vet's Prayer

(From the N. Y. Herald, by Capt. Jack Crawford.)

God of Washington and Lincoln,
God of Lafayette and Lee,
God of Grant at Appomattox,
Once again we come to Thee.
Sore, distressed, humiliated,
Asking God upon our knees,
For a leader in this crisis,
One combining all of these.

Lincoln's heart and Lincoln's wisdom
Flaming soul of Lafayette,
Grant and Lee to Thee surrendered,
Prompt us, Lord, lest we forget.
Raise for us a mighty chieftain
Who is not afraid to fight
For that peace of truth and justice
That will make the whole world right.

Decoration Day On the Place

(By James Whitcomb Riley)

It's lonesome—sort o' lonesome—it's a Sunday day, to me,

It 'pears like more'n any day I nearly ever see!

Yit, with the Stars and Stripes above, a-flutterin' in the air,

On ev'ry soldier's grave I'd love to lay a lily there.

They say, though, Decoration Days is ginerally observed

Most everywhere—Especially by soldier boys that's served—

But me and Mother's never went—we seldom git away—

In 'fint o' fact, we're allus home, on Decoration Day.

They say the old boys marches thro' the streets in colum's grand,

A-follerin' the old war tunes they're playin' on the band—

And citizens all joinin' in— and little children, too—

All marchin' under shelter of the old Red, White and Blue.

With roses! roses! roses—ev'rybody in the town!

And crowds o' little girls in white jest fairly loaded down!

Oh! don't THE BOYS know it from their camp across the hill?

Don't they see their comrades comin' and the old flag wavin' still?

Oh! can't they hear the bugle and the rattle of the drum?

Ain't they no way under heavens they can rickollect us some?

Ain't they no way we can come 'em, through the roses just to say

They know that ev'ry day on earth's their Decoration Day?

We've tried 'hat—me and Mother—where Elms takes his rest,

In the orchard—in his uniform, and hands across his breast,

Florida Rushing Hard Roads

Actual work has begun on the DeLand-Lake Helen division of the system of vitrified brick roads to be constructed this summer in the DeLand commissioners' district of Volusia county, says the Florida Metropolis. Water pipes have been laid from Lake Winnemissett about half-way to DeLand for the purpose of wetting down the work and mixing cement. A camp for men and teams has been established at Blue Lake, which is right on the line of road, and just a short distance outside of DeLand, and brick are arriving for the road. It is hoped that before next winter the road system of Volusia county will be in good shape for the tourist traffic, and the many thousands of automobiles which visit the "Triangle Cities" of DeLand, Daytona and New Smyrna will travel over some of the best roads to be found anywhere. A little over a million dollars is to be spent in this county for road work.

Those farmers' who have an early spring truck crop should make plans immediately to plant another crop on the soil. Much fertilizer material may be wasted if this is not done, for feeding and weeds will soon make away with the available plant food—Florida Grower.

And the flag he died bet, smilin' and a-ricklin' in the breeze

Above his grave—and over that— The Robin in the trees.

And yit it's lonesome—lonesome—it's a Sunday day to me,

It 'pears like more'n any day I nearly ever see—

Yit, with the Stars and Stripes above, a-flutterin' in the air,

On ev'ry soldier's grave I'd love to lay a lily there.

The Board of Trade

"It is right and proper to belong to the Board of Trade and your dues are always acceptable and of use," says the West Palm Beach Tropical Sun. "But your presence at the meetings is often of more value and very desirable." The average member of a commercial organization believes that his name on the books and his annual assessment paid, he is absolved from further responsibility. This is certainly not what was intended. A few members of most organizations of this kind are left to handle the real business—and then there are some who complain about what was done. The presence of every member at every meeting would be ideal, and fine results would be accomplished if half the members turned out with a fair degree of regularity.

This certainly applies to our town of St. Cloud and we should be glad to see a large turn-out at every meeting of the Board. Also, there is room for a number more of new members. Why not round up another bunch of our business and influential men and get things in shape. July Fourth will soon be upon us and we must bear in mind that this year is the turn for St. Cloud to celebrate and it is up to us to have a turn-out second to none. Get a move on you now, for the time is short.

Representative Sears, of Florida

The National Tribune in its last issue published a portion of the speech of Hon. W. J. Sears, Representative in Congress from the Fourth Congressional District of Florida, on the subject of "Florida and Her Projects."

Mr. Sears is serving his first term in Congress, and as The National Tribune is largely interested in Florida, we have kept an eye upon Mr. Sears since he has been here, in order to determine what manner of man this new district in Florida sent to represent them in the Congress of the United States. We must say that thus far we have been more than pleased with his representation of his constituency. He is young, active, alert, able, and always on the job. Of course, he has now had service in actual harness only about five months, but he has demonstrated within that time that he is possessed with no ordinary ability. He is devoted to the interests of Florida, and never lets an opportunity pass where he can be of any possible service to his state and district.

Mr. Sears is also a devoted friend of the old soldiers and believes that they should be properly cared for by the Government of the United States.

It is seldom that a new man makes headway in this great House of Representatives, but Mr. Sears has come to the front rapidly, and we predict that if he is kept here it will not be many years before he will be one of the foremost men in the great House of Representatives.

The people of the Fourth district of Florida will be doing themselves an injustice to think about defeating Sears for re-election.

He has, during his short service here, made many good and strong friends on both sides of the House. We happen to know that the Speaker thinks very highly of him and his ability. He has been called on to preside over the House several times during the last five months, and has presided with signal ability. The fact is he has not been found wanting either in the committee room, on the floor of the House, or presiding over the House.—National Tribune.

The Country Editor

This newspaper business is a great game. Just in the midst of an obituary of a dear friend, and when hot tears threaten to flow down and blot out the words you write, there breaks through the office door the radiant face of the daddy of a new boy. Tears and joy mingle in the same breath, and the giving and taking away of life are recorded on the same page.

Before you have finished the obituary the breezy advance man for a comedy show pops in and asks you to write a scream for his Forty Fat, Frolicsome Fairies and how joyous they are. Before you have done with the kind words about your departed friend, the joy over the new baby and finished the show man's ad, a fellow sneaks in to ask you to suppress the story of the fight that he was mixed up in. Then after putting all the lace and trimmings on the bride's wedding gown, dressing the groom in the conventional black and starting them off with congratulations and best wishes, you turn again to the tear side of life and write: "But the stately ship moves on to the haven under the hill, and, oh, for the touch of a vanished hand and the sound of a voice that is still!"

Then comes a lull, and the old typewriter is content to record the commonplace facts, knowing that just around the corner, and each awaiting his turn, stand Joy, Grief, Sorrow, Mirth, Sarcasm, Wit and Laughter.

Small wonder then that the newspaper man brings to his business a devotion that is not found in any other walk of life.—Oakley (Kan.) Graphic.

A Good Creed

Here is a creed offered by the National Hardware Bulletin. If you can subscribe to it you are a good citizen:

"I believe in my town. I believe in her people in her boys and girls. I will make myself a committee of one to make of this a good place in which to live and a mighty hard place to leave."

"I believe in my town. I believe in her institutions, in her schools, in her churches and her stores."

"I believe in her street broom, and the street sweeper, and in the paint pot. I believe in her empty can on a vacant lot but many a full one in the larder. Never again will I throw waste paper or rubbish in the street or alley."

Independence and Credit

The question of granting independence to the Philippine Islands is commanding serious attention upon the part of congress, and while there are those who are pushing for action, yet the probabilities are that some more resolutions in national political platforms will be required before any definite action is taken by congress.

Rural credit is also up for consideration, but it appears that the big insurance companies, the trust companies and other money lenders, are on the job; and they believe the present high rates of interest should not be meddled with. Therefore they are fighting all forms of rural credits, which might result in loans to farmers at four or five per cent.

Editorialettes

Blackberries and huckleberries are on the market, but as yet they are scarce and show the effects of the dry spell.

Peaches, in spite of past weather conditions, seem to be plentiful and the quality seems to be as good as in former years.

We hear from T. J. N. J. that the assembly recently passed a bill to posing a license on all cats. All the money collected is to go to the overseers of the poor of municipalities.

On June 1st we shall commence to issue 500 copies per week of the St. Cloud Tribune, the county having awarded us that number of subscriptions for a term of three months. These names will be varied from week to week so as to get our paper to the largest number of people possible during the allotted time. If your friends wish any further information after receipt of our paper, and if they are interested in our town or county, we shall be very pleased to forward them further answers to any questions that they might like to ask.

Our next issue will appear on June 1st. On that day, and for the next three months we have six hundred free numbers to send out to our friends each week. We want our readers to send in the names of their friends in the North who they think will be interested in the Wonder City and who propose to take a trip to the Southland next winter. Write out your lists and send them to this office in good season, so that we can have time to arrange them, and be sure to write names plainly, as there is no rule for deciphering names.

We have heard considerable criticism of the manner in which our streets in St. Cloud have been numbered according to the ordinances recently passed. It would seem that the division of the town into first, second, and so forth streets, North and South, would only serve to mix up matters worse than they now are. All plots of the city that are recorded give the numbers of the streets commencing at the lake front south of Cypress avenue as numbered from one to seventeen, while the new arrangement gives the numbers as commencing from one up on each side of the railroad track. Many people here have to look around a long time before they find out which is the north and which is the south. It would also seem to us that the logical way to number would have been according to the recorded lot numbers, as this would have made it a good deal easier for new-comers to locate their property.

Formerly only postoffices having receipts of over $10,000 had any chance to secure a public building. The government is now establishing postoffice buildings in places of smaller size that seem to indicate steady growth and importance. St. Cloud is one of the places that should aspire to a federal building. While the city has only been in existence for seven years our postoffice receipts have already run to the sum of $7,000, and it would appear that at the rapid rate at which the town is growing that even the sum of $10,000 annual receipts should soon be shown. Our postoffice today is anyway inadequate to our requirements. There is hardly sufficient room in the lobby during the summer months, and in the winter time it is far too small, and while the number of boxes seem to be steadily increased there are still far from enough to supply the wants of the winter tourists. We would suggest that our member in congress be requested to put into an appropriation bill an item for a postoffice building in St. Cloud. It may take some time to get the building but if the start is made early it is certain to come early.

GEMS FROM EXCHANGES

BY THE EDITOR

The editor believes it is as truly a man's duty to vote as it is to pray, for the man who prays for good government and fails to do what he can with his ballot to bring about that kind of government is a fraud.—Chipley Banner.

The high cost of paper and other material used in printing offices has caused many small newspapers to suspend publication during the past year and the prospects are that there will be many more suspensions during the present year, as prices continue to advance. Of course, when a newspaper discontinues publication the people who have paid their subscriptions in advance lose whatever amount they have paid, but usually the newspaper publisher is the heaviest loser, as few people who are in arrears lose any sleep over paying what they owe to the defunct paper.—Suwanee Democrat.

Five hundred and nine Florida girls made an average profit of $67.38 from one-tenth of an acre, cultivated by them in garden produce last year. At this rate one acre would produce $673.80. Of course, some of these girls made considerably in excess of this amount, while others did not do so well, but when we consider the average made by the number of girls the result seems marvelous. Everyone should encourage the boys and girls of the state to become members of these clubs. It shows the great possibilities of our Florida soil under intensive cultivation and scientific instruction.—Arcadia Enterprise.

I believe that there will be the greatest concerted movement among land and cattle owners to get rid of the cattle tick in Florida that Florida ever saw, and that it will start soon. Whether or not this will take the form of a state-wide eradication, coupled with a no-fence law, I do not know; I do not believe it will go that far, but I do know that there will be localities in the state that will be tick-free in another year, and I know that there will be requests to the next legislature for permission to vote on the question of fence or no fence in many localities. Once a territory announces that it intends to be tick-free and puts in dipping vats, the U. S. government steps in with assistance that means much. On request the government will put a man in charge of that district and he will have authority to quarantine on the owners' premises any cattle that are not being dipped and this soon does the work. In other states where this has been tried the tick territory has been cleaned up bit by bit and now I note that Mississippi has declared for a tick-free state, and she will get it by another year. Florida will never amount to a row of beans as a cattle state until there is a no-fence law, the tick exterminated and new blood brought in to mix with the native stock. When that time comes Florida will, within a decade, see prosperity she never before dreamed of, and her uninhabited prairies will be covered with sleek cattle knee-deep in luxuriant grasses.—Florida Grower.

The Tribune's classified ads afford all the publicity you'll need in finding a buyer for those lots—or a tenant for that office or store, or boarders or roomers, or household help, or lost articles, or a better position. And your "spare" change pays for it?

W. S. ALYEA

W. S. Alyea came to St. Cloud from Atchison, Kansas, in October of last year, and at that time the Tribune, in announcing his arrival, stated that he was a man who did things, big things, and developments during the past few weeks demonstrate that the Tribune made no mistake.

Mr. Alyea is a developer, a builder, and by reference to another column in this issue, it will be seen that he is one of the organizers of the company that will build an inter-urban railway from St. Cloud to Sanford, which project will mean more to this section than any other one thing that could be accomplished.

And this railway is but one of the many schemes for development Mr. Alyea has in contemplation, and if he is spared to remain among us for a few years we feel certain this section of Florida will be brought into greater prominence than was ever dreamed of by its most optimistic residents. Mr. Alyea is a man of pleasing personality, a plan, every-day Western man who knows his subject and can explain it so thoroughly that the most ignorant can comprehend it.

When Mr. Alyea came to St. Cloud we predicted big things would occur, and we have not been deceived.

Death of Mrs. Vandewalker

Farewell Party To Mrs. Severn

Mrs. Edd George gave a farewell party on Tuesday last in honor of Mrs. Severn, who has been her guest for several months and who was leaving for her home in Chicago. The party was in the nature of a "Thimble" party, and all the visitors had brought their work with them. About twenty-five guests were entertained in a very pleasant manner.

Flowers were presented by Mrs. Triplett and Miss Allen, and the house was beautifully decorated with magnolias and Cape Jassamine. Delightful and dainty refreshments were served on the spacious verandas of the "George Lookout."

The time for departure came all too soon, and all expressed their sincere regrets at the departure of both Mrs. Severn and her charming daughter, Miss Bernice.

Mrs. Severn has been to St. Cloud several times and on every occasion has identified herself very prominently with good boosting work for our city. She has also been prominent in church and social matters, and it is with much regret that we see her leave us. However, she will return in the fall.

Mrs. Severn left on Wednesday for her home in Chicago and will lay off in Cincinnati and Kankakee. She has spent a most enjoyable winter in the Wonder City and would remain here all summer had not urgent business required her presence at home.

UTILIZING PINE NEEDLES

The fragrant, brown pine needles that have lain beneath the trees, trodden underfoot and unutilized except for straining roads, covering vegetables or strawberries, etc., have at last been recognized as useful in many other ways.

The making of fancy articles affords much pleasure to all lovers of fancy work and furnishes employment for deft fingers.

Women, not only in the rural districts, but elsewhere, have discovered that dry pine needles (long leaf pine) are worth something to them, and the longest brown needles are eagerly sought after.

Shipments of needles to northern points have been made, for many have awakened to the fact that not only baskets but table mats, whiskbroom holders, and other useful articles can be fashioned from the hitherto despised brown straws.

Then what a pleasure to gather them. If you feel that a quiet walk in the open air is what you need, just start off with your basket on one of these bright, warm mornings in May, and get in touch with nature when in one of her best moods, and you will be repaid. You wander at leisure, beneath waving, moss-draped pines, the wind murmuring in the tree top, soothing you into restfulness while the happy twittering of birds in orange trees or festooned oaks nearby, is wafted to your ear.

This is the music of the forest, and under its magic influence one may forget for a while the "cares that infest the day," and be won from life's arduous duties, to bask in the sunshine or wander in paths of pleasantness and peace while gathering the odoriferous brown straws.

The very long needles are the ones preferred, and they should be washed before using to remove all dust, and the ends clipped where joined together. To make a basket, use straws sufficient to form a roll about the size of a lead pencil. Sew with raffia or mercerized cotton. Varied are the shapes into which they can be made, and when a pine needle basket is finished, one feels fully repaid for the somewhat tedious work, for you have an article which is truly "a thing of beauty," and a joy as long as it lasts.

The needles can be much improved and brightened by being rubbed on beeswax. Many of our St. Cloud ladies make these fancy articles and have obtained good profits in manufacturing them.

IS OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

Former Student Builds
Dipping Vats for Farmers

D. L. Means, a former student in the University of Florida College of Agriculture, is building dipping vats in Bradford county. C. K. McQuarrie, state agent for the Extension Division recently attended the dedication of a vat which was built by Mr. Means for A. S. Brown, of Dukes. More than 150 cattle were dipped that day. Mr. Means reports that Bradford and Columbia county farmers are interested in dipping and he plans to build several vats for them. Under conditions in those counties he is constructing the vats for one-half to two-thirds the average cost.—Agricultural News Service.

Two-Horse Cultivators Pay

Machinery is cheaper than men. Any farmer who has more than one horse could afford to buy a two-horse cultivator, according to E. S. Pace, district agent for the University of Florida Extension Division. One man with a two-horse cultivator can cover just as much ground as two men with one-horse implement. The wages of the extra man will soon pay for the machine.

Cultivators that will accommodate the disk, shovel or spring tooth attachments are on the market. Of course, it will be necessary to get rid of most of the stumps before improved machinery can be used, but there are many farms upon which the stumps would not bother.—Agricultural News Service.

Did you ever reflect on the value of plenty of good water for livestock? You would not think of giving rotten or decayed feed to an animal. Then why allow it to drink stagnant or unclean water?—Agricultural News Service.

DEMAND LARGE FOR MEN TRAINED IN AGRICULTURE TO DO SPECIAL WORK

High school students are constantly reminded that they should choose their life work before they enter college. Many of them, however, are unable to decide. This fact is borne out by the number of students who change from one profession to another after they have been in college for a while. Not many years ago there was little choice. The broadest fields were law, medicine, and probably engineering. The largest field today is agriculture.

Every high school graduate should at least consider agriculture. The field can never be overcrowded. One does not need to till the soil, although that is the best branch of the profession. Subdivisions are arising all the time. Eventually every county in the United States will have a demonstration agent. Some counties will have two or more. The work will be subdivided in each county. A specialist will be obtained for each branch of agriculture. Agricultural high schools are coming more and more into demand and men must be qualified to take charge of them.

The United States Department of Agriculture needs men now who are capable of carrying on special work and investigations. More men will be needed as the work expands. States are needing men but cannot find them. Many land owners want men to manage estates, plantations and ranches. The demand cannot be met. Railroads and other industrial and commercial institutions are seeking men to handle the agricultural interests of their business. Still the demand cannot be filled.

Agriculture is growing faster than the supply of men who are capable of handling agricultural problems. The man who is well trained in practical and technical agriculture has no trouble in finding employment. Calls are coming continuously to P. H. Rolfs, dean of the University of Florida College of Agriculture, for men trained in some branch of agriculture. Most of these calls must go unfilled. Demand is made for Florida trained men, owing to conditions which are peculiar to the state, but enough Florida trained men are not available.—Agricultural News Service.

Spray for First Spring
Brood of Whitefly

There are two practical methods of controlling whiteflies, according to J. R. Watson, entomologist to the University of Florida Experiment Station. One is by spraying with contact insecticides and the other is by adding the spread of parasitic fungi. The best method is a combination of the two. Owing to the dry weather, which usually obtains in spring, spraying with insecticides is recommended for the spring brood. It is time to do this spraying in most parts of the state. Spraying is especially important this year owing to the unusual drouth which has hindered the growth of controlling fungi.

The paraffin oil sprays are recommended. Of course, unless the numbers of whiteflies in a grove would justify the expense of spraying it should not be done. Such conditions will obtain in some sections, but spraying will be necessary in most groves infested with the pests. If this spring brood is controlled the following broods will not be so hard to control. Growers should not depend too much on fungi this year, owing to restrictions which the Plant Board has placed on shipments of fungus material from groves. The Board will endeavor to supply the red fungus at cost to those who order early. These orders will be filled when the material is needed for the second brood in the rainy season.—Agricultural News Service.

Southern Blight of Potatoes
Carried by Seed

The University of Florida Experiment Station has received specimens of Southern blight of potatoes from several sections of the state this year. It is probably too late to do much toward controlling the disease now, but growers should note its effects and avoid it as much as possible at the next planting. According to Dr. C. D. Sherbakoff, associate plant pathologist to the station, the disease is carried on and in the seed potatoes.

Affected plants wilt just before maturing and in severe cases a brownish dark rot can be noticed at the base of the stem and in some of the tubers. A cross section of the lower part of the stem shows more or less distinct discoloration of the woody parts. A cut across the stem end of young tubers shows a discoloration of the wood fibers which are arranged in a circle some distance inside from the surface. Sometimes it is possible to see a dirty grayish white exudation of the bacteria which cause the disease, from the affected wood elements. The tubers may decay finally.

In the weaker form the disease may escape observation and may be carried from one crop to another in the tuber. It may also stay in the soil. In addition to potatoes it affects other members of the same family, such as the tomato, pepper, eggplant and tobacco. Hence, rotations designed to work control should not include any related plants.

Suckling insects spread the disease in the field. It is necessary to destroy all plants which show infection and to spray for the sucking insects with a contact insecticide such as Black Leaf 40. One should also examine seed potatoes closely. Cut across the stem end and if the surface is not white, if it shows any discoloration at all the potato should be discarded, because it may carry either the bacterial blight or wilt. Since the disease is also carried on the surface of potatoes and cannot be detected there it is well to disinfect the bed.—Agricultural News Service.

THE BEST WELLS

Deep Cultivation in Corn
Field Wastes Moisture

Suppose that you go into a field immediately after a rain and scrape two inches of soil from a small area. What happens? Why, the scraped area dries, of course. Well suppose that you continue to scrape off the top of the ground and expose the moist soils below to the sun. It will dry down as far as you scrape.

That is about what happens when you plow deep during dry weather. Of course the soil is not actually removed, but fresh, moist soil is continually turned up to the sun and dry soil goes to take its place. There is probably no more effective way to lose moisture. Soil dries fast during drouth and if cultivation is deep it will soon go below the roots of corn.

G. L. Herrington, boys' club agent for the University of Florida Extension Division, has been urging club boys to give shallow cultivation. In some sections, however, farmers are using long shovels or turning plows with which to plow their corn, and corn club boys are following their example in spite of advice to the contrary. Only the upper surface of the soil should be stirred. Keep a dust mulch on the field to prevent moisture escaping. Ridging increases the surface exposed to evaporation, and unless there is good reason for ridging, it should not be practiced.—Agricultural News Service.

Corn May Fire as Result of Too Deep Cultivation

Corn may fire as a result of too deep cultivation. Firing is the result of interference with the plant's circulatory system, according to C. K. McQuarrie, state agent for the University of Florida Extension Division. This interference may be due to the drouth or to severed roots.

Some farmers suppose that firing is caused by plowing too soon after a rain. It is probably due to too deep cultivation. If the plow cuts the roots of the corn the feeding powers of the plant are impaired and the lower leaves suffer. As a result of insufficient nourishment they wither and die. Cultivation should not be so deep as to interfere with the small roots which gather the raw materials for food. Land should be stirred with some light implement as soon after rain as it is dry enough to work.—Agricultural News Service.

Some Things That Vegetable and Fruit Growers Should Know

Tomato Spot Controlled by Use of Bordeaux

The alternaria spot or brown rust of tomato has been reported in several parts of the state this year. It has caused more alarm among growers this year, according to Dr. C. D. Sherbakoff, associate plant pathologist to the University of Florida Experiment Station, because they have not recognized it. Furthermore, the drought has prevented the development of another spot, commonly called rust, or correctly black rust, which usually obscures the alternaria spot.

The alternaria spot can be distinguished by its slightly depressed pinkish brown area, which is surrounded by a dark margin and covered with minute blackish pimples, the fruiting bodies of the fungus. It may be controlled by spraying with 4:1:50 Bordeaux mixture, freshly made at home and applied with a good forceful sprayer. When the disease is bad spraying should be done at least once a week.—Agricultural News Service.

Miss Agnes E. Harris, assistant state agent in charge of Girls' clubs for the State College for Women and the University of Florida, reports that one Dade county girl has shipped seventy-two crates of tomatoes from her one-tenth of an acre plot. She will can the rest of the crop.—Agricultural News Service.

Because the hog wallows in muddy water is no reason that he prefers it. He does it because no other is available. The hog is not an animal of dirty habits, in spite of general opinion. If he lives in filth it is because he is forced to do so.—Agricultural News Service.

Sections

The brown rot of tomatoes, which has been common on the East Coast south of Miami, was found recently near Bradentown. It is evident from specimens that have been sent to the University of Florida Experiment Station and from inquiries received, that the disease is common in South Florida low lands, especially in rainy weather.

The disease is conspicuous by its dark greenish brown color, often by distinct concentric rings, and by a hardened area. It is caused by a ground fungus, which, according to Dr. C. D. Sherbakoff, associate plant pathologist to the Station, probably cannot attack the fruit unless it is near or touches the ground. If the disease is causing considerable damage the plants may be staked to hold the fruits off the ground.—Agricultural News Service.

Jackson County Club Does Good Work

Jackson county has one of the best corn clubs in the state. G. L. Herrington, boys' club agent for the University of Florida Extension Division, reports that the prospects of the club are far above the average, especially of those in counties which have no agent. Charles King, superintendent of public instruction for that county, has charge of the work.

Mr. King and Mr. Herrington visited several of the boys recently. Charley Howell, Grand Ridge, who won the county prize last year, is bidding for the same prize again this year. He has the best acre in the county and one of the best in the state, according to Mr. Herrington.—Agricultural News Service.

Liming Thin Soils May Injure Young Citrus Trees

Experience has shown that lime in some form is good for citrus trees in most cases. However, there are some soils which cannot stand an application of lime unless precautions are taken to add humus. E. F. Floyd, plant physiologist to the University of Florida Experiment Station, has observed that ground limestone as well as other forms of lime should not be applied to light sandy soils lacking humus, unless some humus-making materials are added. This does not mean that lime should not be applied. It means merely that if it is applied to such soils, humus-making materials must be added also.

This type of injury has been recently shown in young trees. The ground limestone stimulated growth at first. The leaves were deeper green and growth was more rapid. After a few months growth became repressed. The foliage became badly frenched and yellow. Many of the leaves fell. The new stems were slender, new leaves were undersized and yellowed. The older defoliated stems showed distinct developments of multiple buds.

The bark of the trunk and larger branches appeared hide-bound. The trees had the appearance of being attacked by witherip, although few dead branches were found in the trees. There was a distinct absence of fresh white feeding tips on the fibrous roots. The main roots were apparently uninjured. The cover crop refused to grow. Seedlings of both wild and cultivated crops came up made a small growth and died.

Such conditions indicate a dead soil. They should be remedied, not by depriving the trees of lime, but by adding organic material through cover crops, by inoculation through small amounts of manure, in addition to the lime. The foregoing discussion applies to citrus trees not over 7 to 10 years old on light sandy soils lacking in humus. The injury has not been noted in trees above this age.—Agricultural News Service.

Injury to Citrus Trees by Lime Remedied by Addition of Humus

A number of cases where young citrus trees have been injured by the application of ground limestone to a light sandy soil lacking humus have been found. The following condition cited by E. F. Floyd, plant physiologist to the University of Florida Experiment Station, are apparently common to all: Ground limestone was used on a soil already deficient in humus and no steps were taken to add humus-making materials to the soil. No cover crops were grown or turned under and mineral fertilizers were used exclusively. The affected trees were all less than ten years old.

One grove was found where the foregoing practice was followed several years ago. The grower began to use limited quantities of organic sources of ammonia and phosphoric acid and reduced cultivation to the minimum. He has been growing and turning over cover crops, adding small amounts of manure to furnish inoculation, mulching his trees, and pruning severely the weakened growth. The grove is thrifty today.

It is probable that this is the method which growers will have to follow to bring groves back to condition if they have been injured by injudicious use of ground limestone on soils deficient in humus. Lime can be used but provision should be made at the same time to replenish the humus.—Agricultural News Service.

"MY WIFE IS USING ANDES WITH GREAT RESULTS"

Says Well-Known Local Electrical Contractor

Feels It His Duty to Speak Out

Still another well known and influential citizen of Tampa comes forward and endorses Andes, the new medicine that everybody is talking about, and which is doing so much good among all classes. This time it is W. A. Hagerman, the well known electrical contractor, whose place of business is 216 Bay St. Mr. Hagerman's activities extend all over the city, and he has built up in the past few years one of the strongest electrical independent shops in Tampa.

He does not hesitate to recommend Andes for the good that it has done his wife, and is loud in its praise. My wife is using Andes, he said, a few days ago to the Andes man at Cotter's drug store.

And I have come for more of the prescription, as it certainly is doing wonders. Her trouble has kept her upset and it pulled her down until she got in a pretty bad condition. She was unable to sleep well, and kept tired most of the time. She could hardly eat anything without having trouble over it. Her stomach would fill up with gas, and she would have a heavy, stuffed-up feeling, also was constantly having to belch up sour, undigested food. This condition made her suffer all the time from constipation, and the lack of nourishment made her lose flesh and reduced the vitality. She also had chills and fevers, and female trouble, and has suffered for ten or twelve years. The money that I spent has been a great deal, but nothing did her any good whatever.

I have never paid much attention to patent medicine advertisements, but the many Andes testimonials from well known Tampa people of position and prominence seemed entirely different from the usual run of advertisements, and convinced me that it was worth looking into.

I purchased one bottle and in a few days from the time my wife began to use it she felt better. This is the third bottle and the two that she has already used has made a wonderful improvement. She can eat most anything and it does not hurt her. The chills have stopped and her weakness is getting better every day. She sleeps better, and is gaining in weight. To make a long story short, the medicine has done her good in every way, and we are giving Andes credit for it all, and that is the reason I feel it my duty to let other sufferers know that Andes is such a good medicine.

Mr. Payne, in speaking of the good results that Mrs. Hagerman obtained from his "Premier Preparation," said: Andes is a powerful reconstructive tonic, and quickly overcomes this condition by acting directly on the vital organs, toning them up and enabling them to perform their proper functions, so the impurities are soon eliminated from the system in a natural way. It brings back the appetite, makes the liver active, clears up the skin, and puts a person in good condition for the spring months.

Andes Prescription so highly recommended by W. A. Hagerman, 916 Bay St., Tampa, Fla., is now on sale in St. Cloud by P. D. Marine, the exclusive agent. 39-1t

The Reading of Books

How are the young folks of today to acquire the reading habit? They all go to school and they are taught much more about literature than it was the custom to teach the boys and girls of earlier generations. Yet somehow it does not appear that when they leave school they read the books written by the authors with whose names they become familiar as the great ones of the literary world. It does not appear, in fact, that many of them read books of any kind unless it is the sensational and trivial novels of the day, and even these they have little leisure for.

So many other matters take their attention. The automobile is one hindrance to the formation of the reading habit. The freedom it gives is more fascinating to the average young person than any book of fiction, to say nothing of anything more serious. It invites and knows no refusal. "Movies" attract a multitude to whom motor cars are not available. And there are dances and theatres and the general business of having a good time through some form of activity. For in these days youth demands a good time as an inalienable right—Indianapolis Star.

ILLMAN CO. "Store News" Letter

To My St. Cloud Friends:—

Before beginning a history of the Rochdale Society, I will briefly state the advantages of co-operation: First, the greatest advantage of co-operation is that it makes the common people, as Abraham Lincoln used the term, to help themselves. Second, it promotes thrift, sobriety, kindness, self-thinking, and good citizenship. Third, it interferes with no private rights or individual opinions. Fourth, it makes men to get out of debt and keep out of debt. Fifth, it reduces expenses, bringing producer and consumer together, giving the former a fair profit, while furnishing the latter at a reasonable price articles which are honest in quantity and quality. In a word, it supplies its own capital, insures its own prosperity, and increases in practical beneficence with age. Thoroughly Christian in nature and application. No phase of belief can take exception to it. With this preface I will briefly give you the history of co-operation: In the year 1833 Robert Owen, who was born in Wales, in 1771, organized at New Lanark, the first society. In a brief period many stores were organized, but most of them failed because of a failure to grasp the true principle of co-operation. Retail prices were cut, thereby gaining the bitter antagonism of regular merchants and their keen competition. The common idea in England at that time, of a co-operative store, was the idea that still prevails in the popular mind in the United States. This conception of co-operation failed after half a century's experience in England. It was not until 1844 that the true principle of co-operation was discovered—the feeding of co-operation on its profits. Then it was that a few weavers started the co-operative store at Rochdale. With only $14,000 they originated the plan now known as the Rochdale system, in which each person was limited to one vote electing directors, by whom the business was conducted.

In my next letter this history will be continued. Now, if we are going to succeed in this co-operation plan we must keep the Illman & Co. Store running. I think it will pay you to trade where you will get goods of the best quality, at regular prices, no more, no less. Where you will get honest weight, in a word—a square deal.

Now, a word about our bakery. I am considering the plan of making a round of the Wonder City every day, delivering fresh bread, cakes and pastry—all made in St. Cloud. If you would like to have fresh bread delivered every day at your homes, all you have to do is to say so.

Respectfully yours,

ILLMAN CO.
